Despite widespread understanding that everybody needs a safe place to sleep, #SCOTUS ruled that people experiencing homelessness are not included in the Constitution's protections against cruel & unusual punishment. #JohnsonVGrantsPass	 A graphic featuring a black and white image of the Supreme Court building. Overlaid on the bottom right is a black box with white text that reads: 'SUPREME COURT RULES AGAINST JOHNSON IN JOHNSON V. GRANTS PASS'. There is a small red notification icon in the top right corner of the image.

The Supreme Court recently ruled that people experiencing homelessness are not included in the Constitution's protections against cruel and unusual punishment.

This dangerous precedent affects the quarter of a million people who sleep outside each night and millions of families one paycheck away from homelessness.

Today's decision is out of step with most Americans who reject jailing or fining people for sleeping outside.

Now, more than ever, our community is committed to proven solutions to end homelessness: real-time data, racial equity, and affordable housing. #HomelessnessIsSolvable
#JohnsonVGrantsPass

The decision in #JohnsonVGrantsPass makes it easier to jail or ticket people without homes for sleeping outside. Arresting and fining people won't solve homelessness, but we know what will: a united, data-driven, and equity-focused approach. #HomelessnessIsSolvable

The Supreme Court recently ruled that people experiencing homelessness are not included in the Constitution's protections against cruel and unusual punishment.

This ruling makes it easier to jail or ticket people for sleeping outside, worsening homelessness.

Arresting and fining people won't solve homelessness, but we know what will: a united, data-driven, and equity-focused approach.

We remain committed to building a future where homelessness is rare and brief. #HomelessnessIsSolvable
#JohnsonVGrantsPass

The #JohnsonVGrantsPass ruling is out of step with the values of the vast majority of Americans who reject jailing or fining people for sleeping outside. We remain committed to addressing homelessness with a united, data-driven, and equity-focused approach.
